UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT PUBLICATIONS

NOTE ON GOVERNMENT PUBLICATIONS.

In the volume of the American Catalogue for 1876–84, an endeavor was made to present a systematized list of U. S. Government publications, from Jan. 1, 1881, to which date the chronological Catalogue of Government Publications edited by B: Perley Poore extended, through the remainder of the period of that volume, namely, to June 30, 1884. The preparation of this Appendix involved disproportionate labor and difficulty, for the reason that it was the first attempt to cover the field of current Government publications in any complete and systematized way. The material was imperfect and inadequate, requiring much patient and persistent labor to supply gaps; the department and bureau publications, in their protean changes, had never been coördinated into any bibliographical system; and repeated personal visits to the several offices, weary collation of such records as there were, much consultation with librarians and public officers, and careful search in library catalogues were required to bring any kind of order out of the chaos and develop a bibliographical scheme which would give some clue to the previous lines of publication and define a method of record for the future.

This accomplished, the work of the present volume has been much easier. The direct work of compilation, on the lines laid down by the editor, was intrusted to Mr. J. H. Hickcox, of Washington, editor of the valuable "Monthly Catalogue of U. S. Government Publications" published since 1884, whose knowledge, experience, patience, and skill, working from the basis of his monthly list, with the help of many department officers, produced promptly an approximately complete and correct list. This was put in proof and editorially revised, and slips were then sent to each head of department or bureau, with a request to correct. Most of the chiefs or record-officers responded promptly, fully, and cheerfully, and the editor presents to them the thanks of the users of the catalogue. Repeated letters to the others at last achieved the remarkable and unprecedented result that every department and bureau of the Government returned its proofs, making the list absolutely complete and correct, as far as infallibility is possible in this fallible world. The single exception to the general courtesy was the Chief of Engineers, War Department, Gen. T. L. Casey, whose office replied through Capt. J. G. D. Knight, that it "cannot undertake to read the proof of private publications," and whose list had, therefore, to be corrected from other quarters.

No catalogue of Government publications can be entirely satisfactory, because the methods of publication are still so entirely unsatisfactory. As was pointed out in the preface to the previous list, the existence of bureaus in several departments doing similar work; the occasional transfer of such a bureau or its work from one department to another; the issue of the same "document" in different shapes, series, or combinations (some in as many as five different ways); the general duplication of department reports in Congressional series; the fact that the title-page dates of Congressional volumes have no relation to the actual date of printing or binding of the several parts or to their imprint dates; the inclusion as one number of a series with a single volume-number, of a set of volumes issued at intervals of years; the gaps in the numbering of supposedly continuous series, — are a few of the dilemmas that baffle the attempt to catalogue Government publications with any approach to bibliographical accuracy.

The present system was adopted with the practical purpose of showing the relations of the several lines of publication to each other. The divisions of the executive departments have, therefore, been retained as general heads, the several bureaus or other subdivisions placed under them, and the titles arranged as far as possible to group the same kinds of documents together, the general order observed being: first, the annual reports; second, the laws and decisions; third, the periodical issues; and, finally, the miscellaneous, arranged mainly by date of issue, except that catalogues and bibliographies are placed last. But the date of issue is often not to be ascertained, because of the confusion of dates already mentioned, and, when the date of the text of a report is cited, the imprint date is not usually given. Periodicals and sets which are virtually serials are distinguished by entry of their general heading in italics. Mere office blanks, and minor sheets of administrative instructions, it has not been attempted to include. Reports of U. S. Courts (issued by publishing houses and not by the Government) will be found in the author-alphabet of the American Catalogue.

The Descriptive Catalogue of the Government Publications of the United States, Sept. 5, 1774–March 4, 1881 (the close of the Forty-sixth Congress), compiled by order of Congress by Ben Perley Poore, and issued by the Government Printing-office in 1885, in a large quarto of 1392 pages, chronological in its entries, with a personal and topical index, imperfect as it is, is the chief storehouse of Government bibliography. It is continued, on different lines, in the American Catalogue lists. Should the present editor ever fulfil his project of a General Catalogue of American Publications of the Nineteenth Century, its plan will include as one portion a list of U. S. Government publications on the present system, running back to the beginning of the Government. Mr. W. H. Lowdermilk has also a project for an Index Catalogue of Publications of the United States Government, of full titles arranged topically, of which he has issued some specimen pages and which would be of the first value and importance. The Government itself has made several attempts to catalogue its own publications, and several of the executive departments reported lists of their issues in response to the Senate resolution of March 24, 1881; the catalogues of bureaus, etc., are given in a measure in the ensuing list. For current issues, the "Monthly Catalogue of U. S. Government Publications," issued by Mr. J. H. Hickcox, from 906 M street, Washington, at $5 per year, is invaluable, and every library of importance should certainly have it from the close of the present list, June 30, 1890. Thanks in good part to the efforts of these and other bibliographers, Government bibliography is in excellent shape compared to what it was ten years since, but it will never be satisfactory until the methods of Government publication and distribution are radically changed. The Ho. Exec. Docs. are the chief series of Gov. Pubs., and with the Ho. Misc. Docs. give a nearly complete series of the issues of the departments and special commissions, the various issues of which are duplicated under the lists of department publications. A "List of Congressional Documents, 20th to 46th Congress [1827–81]," 4°, was issued by the Interior Dept., in 1882. There is a necessary confusion as to dates of issue, from the fact that the title-pages have a uniform date for each Congress, though, for instance, Sen. Misc. Doc., 46th Cong.: 3d sess., v. 3, dated 1881, was not bound and issued until 1883. Each volume of each series contains an index to the volumes of the series, though this index is not always absolutely complete. The government year is usually the fiscal year, i.e., July, '89–June, '90, is quoted as 1890.

Geological Survey.

Note. The Geological Survey now includes all the surveys by the government, except Coast Survey (see Treas. Dept.) and Hydrographic office (see Navy Dept.), and Local surveys of the General Land office. By act of 1879 the survey of the Territories, F. V. Hayden, director; the survey of the Rocky Mt. region, J. W. Powell, director; and the survey west of the 100th meridian, under Captain Wheeler (see War Dept., chief of Engineers), were discontinued, and their "final reports" are now completed or in process of completion. The survey of the 40th parallel by C. King, director, was also completed. The first director of the Geological Survey, as consolidated, was C. King, 1879–'80; he was succeeded by J. W. Powell. The reports are sometimes quoted by names of directors. The Survey prints a "Circular concerning publications," giving prices.

Patent Office.

Note. The old annual reports, including "descriptions and claims of patents," illustrated, 8°, 1837–'71, are now replaced by the Official Gazette, issued weekly since 1872. with yearly index vol. From May 30, 1871, there have also been issued monthly volumes of Specifications and Drawings. The Decisions of the Commissioner and the Decisions of the U. S. Courts in patent cases have been published in annual volumes, 8°, since 1869.

The General Index, 1790–1873, gives a complete list of inventions, and a similar index to patentees is in ms., lacking authority to print. This index is supplemented by the Annual Indexes, 1872 to date, to the Gazette, which is embodied in the present Annual Report of the Comr. in 4° shp. (also in Ho. Ex. Docs.). The annual report is also issued without the index in 8° pamphlet (about 16 p.). The drawings and specifications of individual patents, if printed, are supplied by the Patent Office in quantities of twenty or more at 10c. each, or twenty coupons can be bought at 10c. each, and used for single copies.

[Hydrographic Office.]

[A division of the Bureau of Navigation.]

Note. The Hydrographic Office issues [April, 1890] 1,000 charts, of various sizes, not intended to be bound into volumes, corrected from time to time. The catalogue gives titles classified geographically (with full indexes), with scale, size, and price at which they can be bought from the selling agents in the U. S. seaports, ranging from 15c. to $1.50; also trade charts, trade-wind charts, pilot charts, thermal charts, storm and rain charts, whole charts of the several oceans, 45c. per sheet; also meteorological charts, including one of the North Atlantic for each month. The charts of the U. S. coasts and harbors are supplied by the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey.

Hydrographic Bulletin (weekly) contains marine intelligence. Notices to Mariners (in which Hydrographic Notices were merged June 1, 1884) are brief bulletins, 8° size, issued weekly, containing current information and corrections afterwards embodied in the permanent publications.

The Catalogue includes books for purposes of navigation issued or sold by the Hydrographic Office.

Bureau of Steam Engineering.

Specifications for triple-expansion twin-screw propelling engines, with boilers and auxiliary machinery for Naval Academy practice-vessel of about 800 tons displacement. 12°. '81.

Specifications for steam machinery of U. S. dispatch boat (about 1,500 tons) [Dolphin]. 12°. '83.

Specifications for two direct-acting compound twin-screw beam engines of 5,000 horse-power for the U. S S. Chicago. 12°. '83.

Specifications for a three-cylinder, horizontal, back-acting compound screw-engine, for each of the U. S. steamers Boston and Atlantic. 12°. '83.

Specifications for two horizontal direct-acting triple-expansion screw-engines for gunboat no. 1, of 1,700 tons displacement to be named the [Yorktown]. Each engine with its auxiliaries of 1,500 I. H P. under forced draught. 12°. '87.

Specifications for triple-expansion twin-screw propelling machinery for U. S. S. Maine, an armored cruiser of about 6,000 tons displacement. 12°. '88.

Specifications to be followed by contractors in making designs for machinery of 9,000 I. H. P. for U. S. S. Maine. 12°. '88.

Specifications of two horizontal direct-acting triple-expansion screw-engines for the U. S. cruiser Newark (cruiser no. 1), of about 4,000 tons displacement. Each engine with its auxiliaries of about 4,250 I. H P. under forced draught. Designed and to be built by Wm. Cramp & Sons. 12°. '88

Specifications for two horizontal screw-engines for U. S. cruiser Newark (cruiser no. 1), of about 4,000 tons displacement. Each engine with its auxiliaries of about 4,250 I. H. P. under forced draught. Designed and to be built by Wm. Cramp & Sons. 12°. '88.

Specifications for two horizontal direct-acting triple-expansion screw-engines, special plan no. 2, for U. S. S. Philadelphia (cruiser no. 4), of about 4,300 tons displacement. Designed and to be built by Wm. Cramp & Sons. 12°. '88.

Modified specifications for triple-expansion twin-screw propelling machinery for U. S. S. San Francisco (cruiser no. 5), of 4,083 tons displacement and 19 knots speed. 12°. '88.

Specifications for triple-expansion twin-screw propelling steam-engines with boilers and auxiliary machinery for cruisers nos. 7 and 8, each of about 3,000 tons displacement. 12°. '89.

Specifications to be followed by contractors in making designs for machinery of 10,000 I. H. P. for cruisers nos. 7 and 8, each of about 3,000 tons displacement. 12°. '89.

Specifications to be followed by contractors in making designs for machinery of 5,400 I. H. P. for cruisers nos. 9, 10, and 11, of about 2,000 tons displacement. 12°. '89.

Specifications for triple-expansion twin-screw propelling engines with boilers and auxiliary machinery for cruisers nos. 9, 10, and 11, each about 2,000 tons displacement. 12°. '89.

Specifications for triple-expansion twin-screw propelling machinery for U. S. S. Texas, an armored battleship of about 6,300 tons displacement. 12°. '89.

Specifications for triple-expansion twin-screw propelling machinery for [U. S. S. Monterey], an armored coast-defence vessel of about 4,000 tons displacement. 12°. '89.

Specifications to be followed by contractors in making designs for machinery of 5,400 I. H. P. for [U. S. S. Monterey], an armored coast-defence vessel of about 4,000 tons displacement. 12°. '89.

Specifications to be followed by contractors in making designs for machinery of 1,600 I. H. P. for gun-boats nos. 5 and 6, of about 1,000 tons displacement. 12°. '89.

Specifications for triple-expansion twin-screw propelling engines with boilers and auxiliary machinery for gun-boats nos. 5 and 6, of about 1,000 tons displacement each. 12°. '89.

Specifications to be followed by contractors in making designs for twin-screw propelling engines, with boilers and auxiliary machinery for an armored cruiser of about 8,100 tons displacement, to make a speed of 20 knots per hour. 12°. '90.

Specifications for triple-expansion twin-screw propelling engines with boilers and auxiliary machinery for ——, an armored cruiser of about 8,100 tons cruising displacement, to make a speed of 20 knots per hour. 12°. '90.

Specifications for triple-expansion twin-screw propelling engines with boilers and auxiliary machinery for ——, a protected cruiser of about 5,500 cruising displacement. 12°. '90.

Specifications to be followed by contractors in making designs for twin-screw propelling engines with boilers and auxiliary machinery for ——, a protected cruiser of about 5,500 tons cruising displacement. 12°. '90.

Specifications for triple-expansion twin-screw propelling engines with boilers and auxiliary machinery for ——, coast-line battle ships nos. 1, 2, and 3, of about 9,000 tons cruising displacement, to make a speed of 15 knots per hour. 12°. '90.

Specifications to be followed by contractors in making designs for triple-screw propelling engines with boilers and auxiliary machinery for a protected cruiser, no. 12, of about 7,350 tons cruising displacement, to make a speed of 21 knots per hour. 12°. '90.

STATE PUBLICATIONS

NOTE ON STATE PUBLICATIONS.

The list of State publications given in this appendix to the American Catalogue, 1884–90, is, so far as is known to the editor, the first endeavor to catalogue systematically the official issues of the several states of the American Union. The attempt has been — first, by direct correspondence with the State Librarian or other state officers of the several states, secondly, by the use of such incidental data as were in print in the catalogues and reports of state libraries (that of Massachusetts being by far the best in this respect) — to make as complete a bibliography as was possible for the period July 1, 1884, to June 30, 1890, and, as in the list of U. S. Government publications, to arrange the titles so that the list might serve as a useful key to past and future publications of each state. Some State Librarians, notably those of Massachusetts, New York, and New Hampshire, responded promptly and fully; in other cases, a personal journey to the state library — many of the states having been visited during the year past — produced the desired result; in still others, not a word could be had from the State Librarian, probably in most of these cases a perfunctory officer, or from the Secretary of State or Commissioner of Statistics, who were also addressed. More than one State Librarian has replied indignantly that he cannot be expected to give information for nothing. In these instances, the Massachusetts annual lists have been the chief source of the imperfect information obtained, extended or verified from other state lists of exchanges. The results vary accordingly in different states; in a few cases complete lists are presented, so far as completeness is possible; in others, the list of officers reporting and of publications is approximately complete; in others, it has been practicable to record little more than that certain officers make some kind of report at unknown intervals. No state or territory, however, is without some representation, except Alaska, the Indian Territory and Oklahoma, from which no publications are as yet issued, so far as learned.

A large proportion of State publications are, of course, not of general interest outside, or indeed within the state, yet for comparative purposes their record may be important and valuable. It is a happy feature of our federal system that one state, desiring to experiment in legislation or administration, may profit by the experiences of sister states which have already produced good or ill results from like experiments. But aside from perfunctory or merely administrative reports, a considerable wealth of valuable material is concealed in the unexplored heap of State, as of Government, issues. Many of the states, particularly those of the far West and "the new South," issue fact-books as to their resources, etc., which can be had for the asking by public libraries, and which should be at the disposal of readers throughout the states from which emigration sets West and South. The regular or special reports of Boards of Agriculture, of Boards of Health, of Bureaus of Labor Statistics, of Insurance or Railroad Commissioners, the records of prison and reformatory development, the historical publications of several of the states — all these are of real value to inquirers in other states and many of them should be on the shelves of the more representative libraries.

The states are arranged alphabetically, after usual catalogue methods. The issues of each state and the names or official designations of officers vary so much that it seemed desirable to adopt some arrangement of entries, which, even though somewhat arbitrary, would make search and comparison more easy. The plan adopted is to enter first that general publication of the state, if any, which masses into a volume or series of volumes, its general public documents — in handling which Pennsylvania has set an excellent example to other states. Then follow the Executive and Staff officers, who transact the routine business of the State; the inspectors, boards, commissions, etc., who care for the Inspection and Regulation of business in the State, as insurance, mines, railroads, etc., or record the statistics of labor, agriculture, etc.; and the Institutions in which business is carried on by the State, including its schools, library, asylums, hospitals, prisons and reformatories, etc., as well as the societies which have state relations. The line of division is of course indefinite; a Superintendent of Public Instruction, for instance, is a staff officer who inspects and regulates the schools, and might go in either one of the three departments; in some states the Land Office is an inspecting bureau, while in others it sells state lands, and thus falls in the third category. The Judiciary is the next division, and in this are included the leading state reports, though these are in many cases issued as a private enterprise, the state perhaps buying a portion of the edition. In the case of reports and of session laws, the individual printer or publisher from whom they can be obtained at a stated price is usually indicated. No attempt has been made, in such states as Massachusetts and New York, to schedule the reports of lower courts, which should be sought under the state name in the author alphabet of the American Catalogue. The Legislative issues follow, including codifications, session laws, etc.; compilations of laws on a special subject, as school laws, find proper place here or under the department officer, according as they merely contain laws or are edited or annotated. Finally the Miscellaneous or Special issues, unclassified, are given, and this division includes some of the most valuable publications. In the long lists, these divisions are headed as above; in the shorter ones, titles are arranged in similar order, with spacings only to mark the divisions.

The editor hopes that this bibliography, imperfect as it is, will, with the Association of State Librarians brought about by the A. L. A., do its part to induce needed improvements in State publication, bibliography and library administration. He would urge each State Librarian, when this list for 1884–90 reaches him in its final shape in print, first, to fill in omitted titles and bibliographical gaps in the present period; secondly, to extend this list backward to cover previous publications from the beginning of the state; thirdly, to add each year's publications as they appear; and finally to give the editor the benefit of this added information by sending it to the office of the "Publishers' Weekly." It is intended to revise this appendix as a separate publication, with this end in view. In this way, the American Catalogue of 1890–95 will make a thoroughly good showing of State publications, and the line will be made clear for the General Catalogue of 1900. The admirable work done of late years in regard to the State publications of New Hampshire, Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania, and Indiana, sets other State Librarians an example which they may well follow.

PUBLICATIONS OF SOCIETIES

NOTE ON PUBLICATIONS OF SOCIETIES.

THE appendixes of the American Catalogue of 1876–84 included a list of publishing societies and their issues for that period, which was a first attempt in this country to cover that very important bibliographical field. The list was an after-thought, planned after the main body of the work had been nearly completed, and hastily compiled from the imperfect data at hand. The present list, covering the period July 1, 1884, to June 30, 1890, is a considerable improvement upon that first endeavor, and if organized effort and painstaking may count, it should be of approximate completeness and of considerable value. The editor is, however, only too well aware of its short-comings.

The basis of the present list was the schedule of societies made in 1884, with such additions as were immediately known to the editor. By the courtesy of Prof. S. P. Langley, Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, and the coöperation of its Librarian and Assistant Librarian, Messrs. John Murdoch and W. J. Rhees, the card list thus started was compared with the Smithsonian card-catalogue of societies, which is especially strong in the scientific direction, and nearly doubled. The resultant list went next to Harvard College Library, whose catalogue is rich in its record of other classes of societies, and many titles were added there, by courtesy of the Assistant Librarian, Mr. W. C. Lane. The list was then put in proof, and a proof slip for correction sent to the known or supposed post-office address of each society recorded, for verification and for completion of its list of entries. Many responded promptly and accurately; some not at all; others mistook the nature of the inquiry and gave very blind information. The corrected list was further extended by help of the list of historical societies (not all, however, issuing publications) in the American Historical Quarterly Magazine, and by careful search for State societies in professional lines; and finally, although the voluntary coöperation of the Boston Public Library can no longer be expected in such work, arrangements were made, by help of Mr. A. P. C. Griffin, with a member of its staff, who, by over-time work, compared the list with the large index of societies in its cataloguing department, and added still other entries. The fact that no one of these large and representative libraries had anything like an approximately complete list of publishing societies is the best proof of the need of such a list, and of the practical returns for coöperation in producing it.

In fact, there is almost no field in bibliography so important to the special student, and few so fruitful to the general inquirer, as that of the publications of "learned societies," whose number and importance in this country has grown within the past decade quite beyond precedent in any other country or period. The historical societies, in regard to which the later Western states show so advanced and so creditable a position, constitute but one of many lines of development. The issues of such societies as the Grolier Club, the Filson Club, the Dunlap Club, are of great importance to the scholar, and they are rarely to be found in ordinary catalogues.

It has been the endeavor in this list to include all national, state, and general societies known or supposed to issue publications of general or technical interest. With some, no list of issues is given; in these cases no word was obtainable from the society, and it is possible that such are not really publishing societies. It has not been attempted to include county medical associations, teachers' institutes, and such bodies, whose numbers are legion, though they may semi-occasionally issue publications; nor societies or institutions issuing merely reports of their own affairs, unless like the Prison Association, Charity organization societies, etc., these bear upon general public questions; nor catalogues of colleges, libraries, etc.; nor those of art or other exhibitions. But it has been very difficult to draw any satisfactory line between inclusion and exclusion.

Many societies reported to the editor their publications previous to July 1, 1884, or analyses of the individual volumes of their publications. He hopes later to avail himself of this material. It has been arranged to keep the present pages in type for some weeks, during which period he asks librarians to search their catalogues for names of American publishing societies now or previously existing, particularly within their own state or in their own specialty, and to send such, on library cards, to him at the office of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY; and society officers to correct the present list, and extend it backward to the beginning of the society, also to send him such records. This new material, if adequate, will be put in competent hands for working into the present list, and it is hoped to publish the result within 1892 separately, as an approach to a worthy bibliography of American publishing societies. This will be one of the first and one of the best steps toward the proposed General Catalogue of 1900.
